Architecture

Machine Learning Model

This machine learning model architecture defines the various layers involved in this cycle and the major steps being carried out in the transformation of raw data into training data sets capable of enabling the decision making of a system.

Input Output Flow of Project

This input output project will predict the project's end to end flow with all success and failure cases.